Saint Paul's College Proposes Writing Skills Improvement

Lawrenceville, VA: July 27, 2009 – As part of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools' (SACS) reaffirmation process for accreditation, Saint Paul's College has proposed a Quality Enhancement Plan (QEP) that will focus on improving a student's writing skills throughout the course of his or her college career.

According to Dr. Jennifer Palmgren, Committee Chair, the QEP plan will be called "Tiger PAWS (Perfecting Awsome Writing Skills)." Tiger PAWS will improve student writing by requiring students to complete a sequence of writing-intensive courses from the freshman to senior year. The results will be assessed through student portfolios and standardized tests.

Student involvement is essential to the success of the program. The QEP Committee is proud to have created a Tiger PAWS Student Marketing Team that will include Angelica Crenshaw, Shalyn Graves-Davis, Gale Morris, Temidayo Odunlami, and Jessica Price. This team is responsible for generating awareness and ownership of the plan by the entire college community.
